

The Monograph Series

Series Two

11 Reality – Truth and Misconception

In the first series I said consciousness is best described, and conceptualised, with two words: Process and Thought. In this second series I want to explore the first of these two aspects of consciousness, Process, expanding on the conceptualisation of it and how it Works. Before delving into Process, however, it is essential to take a deeper look at reality, and, specifically, at the corrupted mindsets we hold of it because these are greatly interfering with Process, which, in turn, inherently implies, given our definition, that these are also interfering with consciousness. And so they are, to our very great detriment.

12 The Observer and the Subatomic Realm

All the assertions I've made about reality in previous monographs sound good, but they could be just that, assertions, unless you've started Working with them for yourself and so you know from personal experience that they are, in truth, far more than just mere postulations. Delving into the mechanics of consciousness and reality – the quantum mechanics of it, to be precise – is an interesting exercise in and of itself, because quantum physicists are discovering the same truths . . . from a different direction.

13 The Anatomy of Consciousness

Thought, consciousness and reality form a chain of connectivity with energy that is so profound each of these can almost be used interchangeably. In terms of the mechanics of how we Create, of what we Create, and even of why we Create, we need to know and understand more about energy and the way we interact with it. But there is also a link missing in this chain, one we need to know more about if we are to obviate our ignorance and understand what and who we are as Creators.

14 Process: the Source Code of the Universe

So vital is Process that when it is interfered with, or, worse, snagged, consciousness itself becomes damaged. But unlike physical processes, which are easy to see and understand, metaphysical Processes are a lot harder to identify, and for those of us caught in the illusion of Separated physicality, they are impossible to detect. Knowing and understanding the principles that govern metaphysical Processes aids our ability to see them, and see them we must, because we need to start Working with them consciously. The collective human Process is stagnating, and it is damaging us. We need to get it moving again. We need to get ourselves moving again.

15 The Face of Tyranny

We are unable to see beyond the curtain of illusion, so we think the tyranny we fought in WWII was defeated. We think we prevailed. But surely you understand by now the fallacy of such thinking. The tyranny behind the two big wars of last century is as strong as ever it was, and it is preparing to strike at us again in the same way. Are we just to stand by, watch, and let this happen again? Or will we, this time, fight back and show this tyranny it has no power over us?

If we are to fight, we need to know and understand what that fight is and where to fight it, because if we fight this tyranny on its terms, we will lose. We must fight it on our terms, because if we do, it will lose. And it will lose us.

16 Processes of Mastery

Processes of mastery – mastering the illusional reality – are the most powerful of all the metaphysical Processes, and, in this modern era, they are incredibly difficult, and inordinately painful, because there is no infrastructure, like the temples of the ancient world, to support anyone within whom these Processes are Working. Nor is there any real acknowledged precedent, so individuals are on their own, without the means of understanding what is transpiring within them. Yet, these Processes are, and will be, increasing in prevalence. We need to know about them.

17 Keepers of Divine Knowledge

For many of us, as truth seekers, and compulsive ones at that, we know the monuments of the ancient world, and especially those of Ancient Egypt, are far more than just relics from a bygone age. We know they encode Knowledge that is lost to us, and they communicate that Knowledge to us, as if the ancients knew we would lose it. So what is this ancient Knowledge, and how is it the ancients knew what is now lost to us when we are the ones who are seemingly so much more advanced and evolved than they were? And, why should we care? How can this Knowledge have any relevance for us today?

18 The Second Coming

The mythologies of Christianity and Judaism hold an echo of the Knowledge of the ancients because these religions have their roots in Ancient Egypt. But that echo is much-altered, as is our interpretation of the mythologies, courtesy of the distorting filters of indoctrination and institutionalisation. To reconnect with the Knowledge in its original and purest form we need to go back to the source – the mythologies of Ancient Egypt. When we know how to decode them, those mythologies have much to tell us.

19 The Resurrection of Consciousness

How can we stop repeating the mistakes of the past if we don't know what those mistakes were – mistakes that have had profound ramifications for us as a collective consciousness? We don't even understand the physicality of those mistakes, let alone the metaphysical consequences. Knowledge is our protection, which is exactly how and why, in the state of chronic ignorance, we are exposed and vulnerable. So we're hurtling head-long into our own destruction, not for the first time. Are we doomed, or are we, this time, destined for greater things?

19 An Addendum: The Rudiments of Set's Rule

Because the forces of Darkness that harness the principle of Set operate so overtly on the physical plane, with obvious physical expression and manifestation, like institutionalised religion and the mechanisms of manipulation, it's easy to forget that Set is a metaphysical principle of descent and destruction. As such, whilst manifest on the physical plane, Set's rule is implemented energetically, on the metaphysical plane. This can be hard to conceptualise and understand, so it's worth looking at some specific examples.

20 Unconscious Creation

The Bible does speak Truth when it says we are made in the image of God . . . that's God as the Universal, Divine Mind, not the judgemental Demiurge of institutionalised religion. We are Creators. This is our Truest Nature, so Creating is not something we need to learn how to do. We do it with our eyes closed . . . unfortunately. What we do need to learn to do is master Creation consciously because whilst ever we don't, we are not masters of our domain. And whilst ever this is so we will remain puppets whose strings are being pulled by malevolent forces. Worse, though, is the fact that we will never and can never know what we're truly capable of.
