21 Conscious Creation (1) – Attachment to Reality

In this third series I want to explore the other of the two aspects of consciousness, Thought, with a focus on changing, transforming and transcending thought, and freeing thought from our addiction to the illusional reality. Once freed of Separated physicality and all its binding, restricting rules, norms and dictates, there's no limit to what we can Create, and, therefore, to what we can achieve. First, however, we have to go through the rather arduous task of freeing ourselves.

22 Thought (1) – The Secrets of the Cosmos

Thought, the other of the two words we can use to define consciousness. Typically, we are only aware of our shallower thoughts, but, also typically, we still believe we know about thought. Thought is so multifaceted and complex and deep that even the most intelligent philosophical thinkers have barely begun to scratch the surface. And, locked into shallow uni-dimensional paradigms of trapped thought as we are, we have no notion of just how powerful thought actually is . . . or could be. It was, after all, a thought that Created the universe. We have a rather banal term for the moment the thought became manifest. We call it the 'Big Bang'.

23 Thought (2) – A Leap of Faith

A dire consequence of the Perpetual Separation of consciousness is its crippling affect on our ability to expand and evolve thought in all its myriad forms and manifestations. So we have no idea of what we're truly capable of. To even begin to experience our true capabilities, and abilities, we have to, first of all, remove the limits on thought. The subconscious and the imagination are supremely powerful tools that we are, in our current state, severely underutilising. So perhaps the most debilitating limit we're placing on thought is our lack of recognition of the vital role of these two, and our acknowledgement of how effectively they Work with thought.

24 Thought (3) – Sense of Self

Taking our cue from a reality dictated by malevolent forces and agendas will always result in the most limiting thoughts of them all – those we hold about ourselves personally. The wounds of inadequacy and insecurity we all carry deep within make us very vulnerable to the hold of the illusional reality because we use it to cover and mask those same wounds. This is the dynamic the biblical Garden of Eden story alludes to when it tells us Adam and Eve covered their nakedness and hid themselves from God. So who are we really underneath all the clothes we wear? And, do we possess the courage to shed them and, once again, stand naked before God and each other?

25 Our Fall From Grace

Falling out of union and communion with God – our rightful heritage – is a pretty big deal. God did not banish us, or exclude us, from this, our rightful state of being. We banished ourselves. We chose to take ourselves out of that paradisaical union and have been suffering for it ever since. If we know Knowledge is our salvation, and our resurrection, then perhaps it's time to sweep aside the trite clichés we've been spoon fed via the institutionalised religious texts. So if we didn't eat fruit from a forbidden tree of Knowledge, then what did we do to cause ourselves to fall out of paradisaical union?

26 Conscious Creation (2) – The Fatal Break in the Circuit of Creation

When we chose to fall from grace, we tore the very fabric of reality. So, even now, reality bears the brunt of the Perpetual Separation of consciousness, and, as such, forms the barrier of Separation between the dimensions of human existence. Here, in the lower dimension, we are suffering from a fatal break in the circuit of Creation, courtesy of the barrier of our reality, and this fatal break is utterly preventing us reclaiming our power, reconnecting with the extraordinariness of who we really are, and making our Way back home.

27 Conscious Creation (3) – The Marriage of Heaven and Earth

When we start to heal the very great wounds of the Perpetual Separation and misalignment of consciousness, something truly remarkable happens. We don't just set free the extraordinariness of us, we open up our sight and so begin to exist in a new reality – a new and deeper level of existence itself. Even more significantly, though, we begin to reclaim the power of Creation that is an intrinsic aspect of our Truest Nature. This is the true power of God, and it renders illusional power in any of its forms as ineffectual as a tiny and fleeting puff of smoke.

28 Conscious Creation (4) – The Structural Framework of Creation

As the Creative principle is restored within us and we become Conscious Creators, we automatically consciously Work with a structural framework, within which Creation does and must operate. The structural framework of Creation is embodied and personified in Tefnut, one of the nine Egyptian gods of the Ennead, and it is, therefore, an inherent part of every consciousness. The Knowledge of this framework deepens our understanding of Creation itself and facilitates the 'Conscious' aspect of Conscious Creation, so an in-depth exploration of it is beneficial, even necessary.

29 The Thought of the Human Experience

The previous monographs should, by now, have altered our thought patterns and opened and expanded our minds enough to handle a far deeper exploration of this human experience – what it is, what forms it, why it exists, its multifaceted and multidimensional Truths, and why it's now time to fundamentally change it. We need to look at and see ourselves with and through higher-dimensional eyes. We need to look upon ourselves the way the rest of the Universe looks upon us.

30 Highest Potentiality

When we truly master the illusional reality, reality is no longer illusional, and the tear in the fabric of it is mended in such a way that not even a scar remains as evidence of what once was. Reality takes its rightful place as one tool among many Process is able to Work with. But this is not and cannot be the end of our Work with reality simply because, by virtue of being incarnate in this human experience, physical reality is the canvass we're Working with. This renders reality unique as a tool of Process, but even more significantly, as Creators, when reality becomes what it really is, we are able to do the most amazing things with it. Really amazing things
